

GAREN WILL SEEK CHANGE OF VENUE AND CONTINUANCE

Former Theater Manager Who Pleaded Guilty to Embezzlement, to Base Plea on Alleged Prejudice, Following Recent Conflict Before Judge Taylor.

APPLICATION WILL BE PUT IN MONDAY

Power of the St. Louis Bar Association to Investigate Circuit Attorney Jones' Action in Case Declared by Its President to Be Limited.

The next move in the Garen case is scheduled for Monday morning, when Rexler Meigs, attorney for the embezzling former manager of the Havlin Theater, will ask Judge Taylor for a change of venue.

Judge Taylor is expected to appoint a special prosecutor for the Garen case, relieving Circuit Attorney Seibert G. Jones, who announced he would enter a nolle proes.

Garen's attorney will then ask for a continuance, when application will be made for a change of venue.

Attorney Meigs says this will be based on the extensive newspaper comment on the case, and the consequent prejudicing of public opinion against his client.

He says the plea of guilty made by his client in Judge Taylor's Court, and his statement that he "understood a parole was to be given him because most of the stolen money had been returned," have so prejudiced the minds of the jury that it will be difficult to get a jury that will give his client a fair trial.

Circuit Attorney Jones declined Saturday morning to discuss the case on the grounds that he said all that was about the matter in the statement he gave to the press after his recent conference with Gov. Hadley in Jefferson City.

Clifford B. Allen, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, told a Post-Dispatch reporter, Saturday, that the association would have no power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books and papers, if it undertook to investigate the Circuit Attorney's office.

"It would have to be entirely a voluntary proceeding," said President Allen. "I have not yet received any request from Circuit Attorney Jones that I appoint a committee to investigate his office, but if I do receive the request the committee will be appointed."

It is pointed out by lawyers that a committee from the bar association would have no power to swear witnesses, and could hear only such voluntary statement as Jones and his associates might wish to bring before it. Witnesses, not being sworn, could make any statement they desired. The committee would have no power to question an unwilling witness, and no means of forcing him to give information in his possession.

Circuit Attorney Jones, in a statement given out at Jefferson City, Friday, after a conference with Gov. Hadley, said he would ask the Bar Association to appoint a committee to investigate his office, and also to investigate the charge that Jephth D. Howe, his brother-in-law, had unduly influenced his conduct in office.

The next meeting of the Bar Association will be March 6. If Jones asks for the investigation, the matter will be acted upon at that meeting.

ENGLISH DEAN WILL CUT COMMANDMENTS

Special Cablegram From the London Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The Dean of Winchester, who intends to submit proposals for altering the form of three of the Ten Commandments to a meeting of the Convocation of Canterbury in May, said in an interview today:

"It was suggested at a meeting of the Committee of the Lower House of the Convocation that some alteration should be made in the second, fourth and tenth commandments. The alteration, of course, would be an abridgement, and I shall suggest that it be limited to 'Thou shalt not covet.' The other two are not yet considered."

GILL'S CHECKS WENT TO PRECINCT MEN

Witness—Declared Democrat Swapped Personal Paper in Exchange for Committee's.

Checks for $20 signed by Patrick F. Gill were passed out among the Democratic precinct committeemen of the twenty-sixth ward a few days before the November election, according to the testimony of John J. McCarthy, of 4232 Eastern avenue and Stephen Rodgers of 4608 Eastern avenue in the Gill-Catlin congressional election contest Saturday.

It was explained by McCarthy that Gill gave Committeemen J. Y. Patrick his personal checks for small amounts for distribution among the committeemen and took from Patrick in exchange the check he had received from the Democratic City Committee for election expenses in his ward.

McCarthy said Patrick did not have time to cash the City Committee's check before the election, and that Gill gave him the small checks for convenience only. McCarthy testified that it was his belief that each precinct committeeman got $20 for election day expenses. His testimony was corroborated by Rodgers.

The testimony of McCarthy and Rodgers was given before Notary W. S. Hageman in room 317, Security Building.

BATHTUB IMMUNITY BATH IS DEMANDED

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 18.—Alleging the individual defendants in the Government's criminal action against the so-called Bath Tub Trust have earned immunity by the course of the Government in the civil suit begun in Maryland, Attorneys Stevenson, Carpenter and Butzel today filed a plea in the local Federal Court to have the criminal case dismissed.

It is declared that the civil suit defendants were required to answer under oath and disclose certain facts charged in the indictments.

The immunity statutes protect persons who give such testimony or produce such evidence, it is contended.

TODAY YESTERDAY FOR HOUSE UNDER CANNON'S RULING

Speaker Decides Recess Agreement Holds and Mann's Filibuster Is Renewed.

WAR CLAIMS BILL IS UP

Roll Call Demanded and Indications Are Session Will Last Into the Night.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Speaker Cannon this afternoon made the unique ruling that in so far as the national House of Representatives is concerned, today is yesterday. In other words, he sustained the contention that Friday's session was still in progress.

Immediately after this announcement Representative Mann of Illinois, who filibustered all day yesterday against the passage of the omnibus war claims bill, resumed his tactics and began to demand roll calls on every proposition put before the House. Indications were that the filibuster would continue all day and into the night.

Start Fight Before Prayer. The fight started when the House met today and attempted to renew consideration of the omnibus claims bill. Democrats contended the session was a continuance of the legislative day of yesterday, but Representative Mann insisted that the House, having taken a recess last night to 11 o'clock, the usual hour of meeting, began the session as a new day.

The whole question revolved about the parliamentary point as to whether advocates of the claims bill had moved a recess, intending to take up the bill today as of the legislative day of Friday.

The regular hour for meeting recently was advanced from noon to 11 a. m. This fact gave Mann opportunity for a new objection to the bill on the ground that it was not in order on a new legislative day.

As soon as Speaker Cannon rapped for order, and before the chaplain had offered prayer, Sims of Tennessee moved that the House go into committee of the whole to resume consideration of the war claims bill. Under favor of the bill, and Mann handled those against it.

Representative Weeks of Massachusetts took the position that the only way to get rid of the legislative day of yesterday was to adjourn. Representative Norris of Nebraska held that where two orders of the House came into direct conflict, the last order should prevail. The last order in this case was the recess.

Lost Point of Order Chance. Speaker Cannon sustained the view that the session of yesterday was still in effect. The Speaker called attention to the fact that the rule providing for recesses was dropped by the House in 1890, yet in practice the House has ordered recesses, from time to time.

"If a point of order had been made against the motion to take a recess," said the Speaker, "it would have been sustained. It was not made, however, and the House agreed to take a recess until 11 a. m. today."

The motion to take up the claims bill then was resumed. Representative Foss of Illinois complicated matters by moving to take up the naval appropriation bill. On a standing vote this motion was defeated, 109 to 138. The yeas and nays were then ordered.

The formal notice of the withdrawal of the Armour Packing Co. from Missouri, filed Friday with Secretary of State Roach, will have little if any effect on the suit now pending against that corporation under the Missouri anti-trust statutes, according to the statement of a high official of the company to a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday.

The Armour Packing Co. recently was taken over by Armour & Co., according to this official, and the withdrawal of a representative of the old organization in Missouri is a formality to meet legal requirements.

The notice of withdrawal was signed by Charles W. Armour, president, and James Murray, secretary. It recited that the action was taken pursuant to a resolution adopted at a meeting of the directors Jan. 16, 1911. The resolution cited revokes the authority of M. E. Linville of St. Joseph, to act as representative of the company in the State.

Attorney-General Major announced after the notice had been filed that he would not permit the company to withdraw its property from the State while the anti-trust suits are pending. He said he would appeal to the Supreme Court for an injunction to prevent a removal if it became necessary.

FINANCIER'S WIDOW WHO HELPED U. S. RECOVER VALUABLE LAND

MRS. HARRIMAN AIDS U. S. TO RECOVER 2000 ACRES

Union Pacific Railroad Restores Land After Investigation Ordered by Railroad Magistrate's Widow.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 18.—Through the efforts of the widow of E. H. Harriman, late president of the Union Pacific Railroad, and Government officials in Colorado, 2000 acres in Nevada, said to have been obtained illegally by the old Central Pacific Railroad, has been decided back to the Government. The railroad took the more valuable sections, which were rich in ore deposits, and entered them as agricultural lands.

When Mrs. Harriman discovered this vast property was being held illegally by Union Pacific interests, it is said she ordered her attorneys to effect a compromise. Frank Hall, Government attorney, is now in Washington arranging terms of settlement between the Department of the Interior and the Union Pacific.

At the time of Harriman's death, suits were pending in the Federal court at Reno against the Union Pacific and allied roads. It was the testimony presented by Government attorneys showed that the original grant from the Government to the old Central Pacific, later absorbed by the Southern Pacific, gave the road every alternate section, but it was proved by the Government that the railroad took the more valuable sections, which were rich in ore deposits, and entered them as agricultural lands.

When Mrs. Harriman discovered this vast property was being held illegally by Union Pacific interests, it is said she ordered her attorneys to effect a compromise. Frank Hall, Government attorney, is now in Washington arranging terms of settlement between the Department of the Interior and the Union Pacific.

MAJOR PLANS TO PREVENT REMOVAL OF ARMOUR PLANT

Declares He Will Oppose Any Effort to Withdraw Property While Suit Pending.

The formal notice of the withdrawal of the Armour Packing Co. from Missouri, filed Friday with Secretary of State Roach, will have little if any effect on the suit now pending against that corporation under the Missouri anti-trust statutes, according to the statement of a high official of the company to a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday.

SISTER SUES FOR LARGER SHARE IN $250,000 ESTATE

Frank Bradford's Bequest to Orphan Asylum Is Attacked in Court.

Suit to break a will by which most of a $250,000 estate was left by Frank E. Bradford to the Baptist Orphans' home, was filed Saturday by Mrs. Caroline Bradford Ryan of 4124 A. McPherson avenue and her two children, Alfred G. Ryan and Mrs. Emeline von Beckendorf.

The petition, filed on the second anniversary of Bradford's death, states that he was never married and that Mrs. Ryan, a sister, is his nearest relative. It charges that Bradford suffered from a mental disease, making him incompetent to properly devise his estate.

By the will the income of the property at Eighth and Pine streets is left to Mrs. Ryan, but the bulk of the estate goes to the Baptist Orphans' home, with Alonson D. Brown, James S. McClellan and Robert E. Rutledge as trustees. Rutledge also is administrator of the estate and holds in trust the Pine street property left to Mrs. Ryan.

PUBLIC HEARING ON CUT IN LIGHT RATES TO BE CALLED

POST-DISPATCH'S FIGHT WON POWER TO FIX RATE

AT the suggestion of the Post-Dispatch an enabling act conferring upon St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph the power to regulate the rates and services of public utility corporations was introduced in the regular session of the Missouri Legislature in 1907. The bill was passed by the Senate, but was defeated in the House of Representatives by the powerful opposition of the combined public service lobbies. The legislative agents of the United Railways and Union Electric Light and Power Co. were among those who took credit for its defeat.

Former Gov. Folk, at the request of the Post-Dispatch, called a special session of the Legislature, soon after the adjournment of the regular session, to pass the enabling act. The law was passed easily in the special session.

After its enactment the Post-Dispatch began a campaign to have the Municipal Assembly of St. Louis pass an ordinance creating a public service commission appropriate money for its expense. The bills were repeatedly defeated by House of Delegates combines. In the summer of 1908 the Post-Dispatch printed a series of articles on the electric lighting situation in St. Louis, creating such a strong sentiment in favor of regulation of public service corporations that the Municipal Assembly was forced to pass the public service bill, and John I. Beggs and W. V. N. Dawson, who were operating and managing the electric light company, were forced to give up their positions.

Under the bill, as passed by the Municipal Assembly, the present public service commission was created in February, 1909, and has since been devoting its energies to an investigation of Union Electric and the United Railways.

50-ACRE CAPITOL SITE IS OFFERED BY ILLINOISAN

Leon Priwer, East St. Louis Councilman, Wants to Give Property to Missouri.

Leon Priwer, member of the East St. Louis City Council, through his attorney, Abraham B. Frey, has offered 50 acres of land near Woodlands in St. Louis county as a site for the new Missouri capitol. Priwer owns a tract of 190 acres, and his attorney told the Post-Dispatch Saturday that the State could have any part of it for a capitol site.

The ground is high, within a few hundred yards of the Wabash railroad and the St. Charles electric line. The land owned by Priwer adjoins the 50-acre tract owned by Barney Schreiber. The offer of the site stirred up renewed enthusiasm among the capitol removal boomers.

Priwer, although a citizen of Illinois, declared that he was interested in having the capitol of Missouri removed to a point near St. Louis, where it would be easily accessible to all the people of the State.

Edward Wedekind of Greenville, Ill., filed suit in Bond County, Ill., to recover a 290-acre tract owned by Barney Schreiber and Miss Clara M. Young, to recover $10,000 worth of real estate at Kennerly avenue and Sarah street. He says he deeded the property to his former wife under the mistaken impression that he was conveying her only a life interest.

He asks that she be restrained from disposing of the property and that it be restored to him. Wedekind has brought a similar suit in Bond County, Ill., to recover a 290-acre tract owned by Barney Schreiber and Miss Clara M. Young, to recover $10,000 worth of real estate at Kennerly avenue and Sarah street. He says he deeded the property to his former wife under the mistaken impression that he was conveying her only a life interest.

CURTISS TELLS OF ALIGHTING ON SEA IN TEST FLIGHT

He Flew to Cruiser, Landed Alongside, Was Hoisted on Board, Then Put Back. MADE WITHOUT A HITCH Used New Machine Which He Believes Is Not Well Fitted for the Work.

By Glenn H. Curtiss. SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 18.—With the assistance and co-operation of the commanding officer of the first division of the Pacific fleet and officers of the armored Pacific cruiser Pennsylvania in particular, I was able to demonstrate one of the most important things involving the usefulness of the aeroplane in the navy.

Using a hydro-aeroplane of my recent development, I flew from North Island to the Pennsylvania yesterday, landed alongside and was hoisted aboard. After a brief stay I was hoisted overboard and rose from the water and returned to headquarters on North Island. This feat was undertaken in order to further the interest of the Navy Department in the adaptability of the aeroplane to navy uses, and in the opinion of the officers who saw it, it was successful.

In making the test I used an experimental machine fitted with the same type of float and hydro-surfaces used in my successful water flights, with the exception that I had placed the propeller in front of the planes instead of behind, as in the case of the standard Curtiss machine. This was purely an experiment, as my best water flights have been made in a standard Curtiss machine with the use of the water floats instead of the wheels used on the land flights.

I found that the machine I used was not well adapted to the work. In other words, the fixing of the propeller in front of the operator's seat interfered with his vision and made it difficult to see how to steer and to judge the distance from the surface of the water. There was no trouble experienced at any stage of the experiment. The trip to the cruiser was without incident, the hoisting aboard was made without a hitch and the rest of the program was equally as easy.

I am satisfied with the demonstration if, in the opinion of the officers of the Pacific fleet who observed it, it proved of interest to the adaptability of the aeroplane to navy uses and further the cause of aviation.

Photographs of the Curtiss hydro-aeroplane, on the water and in the air, will be printed in the Picture Section of the Sunday Post-Dispatch tomorrow.

THREE DROWN WHILE RESCUERS SEEK BOAT

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 18.—Dell McQueen, Dudley Thorpe and Charles Egger were drowned and John Ballard resuscitated only after several hours hard work, after their boat upset in the Missouri River.

WHEN THE WOMEN RULE

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch by Jean Knott

Cut in Electric Light Rate Is Recommended

as 15 per cent has been allowed. As a method of regulating the use of this fund the commission suggests that it be deposited in a bank designated by the Comptroller and expended under the control of the city only for maintaining and extending the company's service. As the city cannot now lawfully exercise that authority, it is likely that the Legislature will have to be asked for it.

For the protection of the company the Public Service Commission would permit the collection of minimum bills for service. In the case of those paying the maximum rate—90 cents per kilowatt hour—this monthly charge would be 50 cents. For other consumers it would be $1 a month.

Reimbursement of Company. It was thought that this would reimburse the company for the installation and maintenance of such return, the company's nominal use of current.

In the valuation of the Union company's property no account was taken of its franchises. Respecting this policy the commission says:

"The value of a franchise is, after all, determined in the final estimate by the amount which the company is enabled to earn under it, and if by reason of legislative regulation and limitation of such return, the company may only earn a reasonable return on its investment, the franchise would seem to have no substantial value."

Franchises Given by Public. "Above all other reasons for not allowing franchise value in this case stands the simple fact that the franchises were given free by the public. They cannot, then, with justice, be valued against the public in establishing the rates."

Except as it affected the cost of establishing the Union's business, abandoned property, much of which was listed in the company's first inventory and appraisal, was not considered by the commission in the valuation of its holdings or in the making of rates.

To prevent the assessment of heavy charges against ordinary consumers so that the Union company may continue to serve the United Railways Co. at a very low rate, the commission has segregated from the portion demanded for the production of current for the traction company. This part of the Union's whole investment, as determined by the commission, is $2,932,032.

Price the U. R. Pays. The United Railways pays about 1 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour for about half the current generated by the Union. While none of the Union company's system of distribution is used by the United Railways Co. in obtaining this current, the investment charges—representing the greater part of the cost of the service—are apportioned among other consumers. Unless a proper proportion of these charges is borne by the traction company, the Commission reports, there would be a serious discrimination against the general consumer.

"A further and very important consideration taken into account in deciding this point," the Commission reports, "is the fact that at the time the original contract for this railway business was entered into, both companies were controlled by the same owners as they are today."

It is understood that the findings of the Commission and the ordinance will be referred to a large special committee in each branch of the Assembly, or to a joint committee. The Assembly is not bound by the Commission's recommendations and may, if it chooses, establish a higher or a lower maximum rate, or may specify various rates.

This method, however, is deprecated by the commission, which says that it would be unwise to fix by law "a minutely detailed system of rates for electric light and power, however, full and reliable the data for calculation might be."

Railways Investigated. The commission began investigating the Union company in June, 1929. A corps of 12 technical men was employed to make an inventory and appraisal of the property under the direction of James E. Allison, chief engineer. By January, 1930, the commission had prepared a tentative valuation of the company's properties. Since that time the commission has been checking its valuation with appraisals of rates for electric light and power, and hearing and weighing arguments respecting particular items and details of the company's figures.

Concurrently with the investigation of the Union, the commission has been making an inventory and appraisal of the plants, equipment and other properties of the United Railways Co. These are nearly finished.

Company Disappointed. Allen S. Miller, president of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., told a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday that the report of the Public Service Commission is disappointing to the company. He said that large sums have been spent in building up the business and that this expenditure should be considered a part of the cost of the property.

"The effect of the commission's action has been to reduce the value of the property $14,000,000 below the actual cost as shown by the books," he said. "Further, we cannot understand why the full value of the real estate as appraised by such experts as Mr. Benoit and Mr. Zeibig should not be allowed."

Complaints of Injustice. "The most serious decisions of the commission are those in relation to the schedule of rates. The commission finds that the Union Electric is justly entitled to what it is earning, but at the same time recommends that the maximum rates be cut down. This seems utterly inconsistent, unless it be the policy of the commission to compel us to raise rates on commercial and industrial consumers, a policy which would certainly be bad for the city generally."

"We do not question the sincerity and good intention of the commission, but we feel that simple justice has not been done the Union Electric. We feel that the commission has arrived at conclusions which must necessarily hamper our future development."

MADERO RETREATS TO HILLS BEFORE NAVARRO'S FORCE

The Self-Proclaimed Provisional President of Mexico Takes a New Stand.

By Associated Press. EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 18.—Reports from Guadalupe this morning are that the insurrecto chiefs with 300 armed men, have gone to the hills south of there and that the 1000 Mexican soldiers from Juarez will find the place evacuated when they arrive today. Madero expects to be able to hold his new position.

Mail advices from Torreon say Federal troops have reached Veladren and Proricensa, near there, and that the insurrectos have gone to the hills. The insurrectos have burned the Mexican National bridge at Pedernales and sacked the store of J. R. Campos at that place. Leuro Caransa, captain in the Thirtieth Mexican Federal Infantry just found guilty at Chihuahua of aiding the revolutionists and sentenced to be shot, will be sent to Mexico City for execution.

Guiterres de Lara, a Los Angeles Socialist, who is a captain in the insurrecto army declares all the labor unions of the United States would be appealed to protest against United States troops maintaining the army as a guard along the international boundary. He says the troops merely disarm and release Mexican soldiers, but arrest and prosecute insurrectos.

He declares it cost the United States about $1,000,000 quarterly to guard the border and that Mexico spends no money to keep the United States to keep back the hordes of the Chinese that flock into this country.

FEDERAL TROOPS AID INSURGENTS

Many Mexican Soldiers Reported to Sympathize With Foes of Diaz.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LAREDO, Tex., Feb. 18.—American officials along the Rio Grande say that Mexican Government troops, in sympathy with the revolutionists, are giving arms to them.

A deputy marshal who has been on the scene at Laredo says that the capture by rebels of seven wagon loads of arms and supplies near that place a few days ago was simply a gift by Government soldiers.

The same official declares that practically all the soldiers in Chihuahua sympathize with the rebels and await an opportunity to desert to them.

VEGA HAS ONLY A BODYGUARD LEFT

Defeated Mexican General's Wounds Likely to Cause His Death.

By Associated Press. SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 18.—As a result of the defeat at Mexicali, the Federal force which Gov. Vega spent several weeks in organizing, was hopelessly dispersed. Vega, desperately, and perhaps fatally wounded, has reached his old camp at Las Juntas with barely a bodyguard of his former force, according to advices received here.

A special from Campo says: "With only five soldiers, the remnant of a force of 200 men, Gov. Vega arrived at Las Juntas this morning. Couriers are hastening to Ensenada for surgeons to treat the Governor's wounds, which, owing to his advanced age, is likely to result fatally."

"He was shot twice at Mexicali, one bullet striking him in the mouth, knocking out teeth and tearing the roof of the mouth. The other inflicting a flesh wound in the neck. He was borne across the desert on the retreat from Mexicali on a stretcher."

"Vega's entire force, save the remnant with him, has either deserted or is discouraged and hiding in the hills near Mexicali or the American side. Vega lost 15 men killed and several wounded."

SLANDERERS, SAYS APPONYI OF EDITORS

Slavonic Newspaper Men Charge Him With Causing Death of Many Peasants.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 18.—Count Albert Apponyi, the Hungarian statesman, who is touring this country and talking peace, is incensed over the attacks made on him by Slavonic editors in Chicago.

"Education that the Count, as Minister of Education, was responsible for the death of many peasants in Carmania. The memorial charged him with being the chief representative of Hungarian tyranny and that Slavonic schools the teaching of the mother tongue was prohibited. In short, the Count was pictured as a real tyrant."

"Nothing contained in any of these charges is true," said the Count. "The very men who denounce me are just the men who are responsible for the deaths of many peasants. They took good care not to expose themselves, but remained in hiding, surreptitiously circulating their infamous stuff."

"I can only characterize this accusation as audacious and the mildest term I can use is that of base slander." "I had intended speaking in Chicago on universal peace, but now I have decided to speak on Serbian and Racial Problems in Europe."

WARRANT CHARGES A TEACHER WITH BEATING PUPIL

J. H. Daily Also Asks Dismissal of Supt. I. E. Belote of Upper Alton.

The dismissal of Prof. I. E. Belote, superintendent of the Upper Alton schools, has been asked by City Marshal J. H. Daily, who also obtained a warrant Saturday charging the professor with assaulting his son, Joseph Daily, 14 years old.

The statement of Daily is that Prof. Belote threw his boy on the floor last Wednesday morning, and beat him, also that he kicked the boy in the side and back.

The trouble occurred while the freshman class of the high school was at music recitation under direction of Miss Martha Kimball.

No Violence, Teacher's Statement. Prof. Belote was not at home Saturday morning, but his wife told the story of the affair as it had been told him by her husband. She said Prof. Belote, in passing the music room, heard sounds indicating disorder, and went into the room. He saw the Daily boy standing on a chair, and ordered him to sit down. She says her husband did not use rough tactics with the boy, but took him by the shoulders and forced him to the seat.

The Daily boy says when Prof. Belote came into the room the scholars were told to stand up. When Prof. Belote looked at me," said young Daily, "and said I was not behaving myself. He reached over a row of seats and grabbed me, pulling me over the seats to him, then threw me down on the floor and, placing a hand on each side of my head, bopped it against the floor. Then he kicked me in the back and in the side. He was very angry, his face was red and he was very much excited. When he had finished beating me I asked him why he did it and he said if he had any more trouble with me he would settle my head."

Board Will Investigate. The Daily boy has a big bruise on his side and on the back of his head are several lumps, due, he says, to Prof. Belote's attack.

The application for dismissal of Prof. Belote was made by Daily to Dr. E. A. Cook, president of the Upper Alton Board of Education. The board will make an investigation.

The warrant for the arrest of Prof. Belote was issued by Justice of the Peace Frank Ford, but it had not been served Saturday morning.

BURGLAR'S KISS AWAKENS GIRL

Servant Arouses Family and Employer Falls Down Stairs in the Chase.

An affectionate burglar kissed the hand of Sophia Degrum, 18 years old, a servant in the home of Henry Deffas, 323 South Thirteenth street, after he had entered the house through a rear door at 1 a. m. Saturday. The young woman awoke and screamed. Deffas came from his room as the burglar fled from Miss Degrum's room and ran down the stairway.

Deffas attempted to follow the fleeing intruder. He slipped on the stairway and fell, breaking his right wrist. The burglar ran through the rear door and escaped.

Miss Degrum sleeps in an upstairs bedroom adjoining that of Mr. and Mrs. Deffas. She first knew of the burglar's presence when she felt a kiss on her hand. When she awoke a white man stood beside her bed. She has given a description of the man to the police.

The only article taken by the burglar was a tan corduroy cap. The rear door had been broken with a poker.

FIVE ARRESTED AS LEAD PIPE THIEVES

Four Negroes Charge Junk Man Fitted Them Out for Raiding Vacant Houses.

The police of the Dayton Street District captured Saturday a gang of alleged lead-pipe thieves that had been gutting the plumbing out of vacant houses and selling it for junk. Four negroes and one junk dealer were arrested.

The negroes gave the names of Esau Roberts, William Kealy, Henry Dunkins and Massey Robins. The junk dealer was Jacob Cohen of 2109 Wash street.

The negroes confessed that Cohen furnished them with a push cart and a hatchet, and that they cut pipe from houses at 2740 Lucas avenue, 717 Garrison avenue and 2339 Dayton street and sold it to Cohen, and from houses at 2305 Thomas street and 616 North Channing avenue. Some of the houses were badly damaged.

Three real estate firms, John S. Blake & Co., the Junior Realty Co. and the Noonan Realty Co., agents for the houses, arranged with the police for a campaign of extermination of the lead-pipe thieves.

The negroes hauled two boxes of bottles in the cart to conceal the pipe.

Submarine "Sink" Cruiser. SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 18.—In an attack last night in San Diego harbor, the submarine Pike theoretically sank the cruiser California, flagship of the Pacific Coast fleet. The Pike got within 700 feet of the cruiser, in spite of all attempts on the warship to locate the submarine.

The Pike was in command of Eastern Donovan, assisted by Ensign Chew, ordered from Mare Island for special instructions in submarine work.

MOTHER GAVE HER LIFE IN NURSING CHILD TO HEALTH

Mrs. Mary Jenkins Hastened to Home of Divorced Husband Where Daughter Was Ill.

Called to the bedside of her child, who was ill with pneumonia, at the home of her divorced husband in East St. Louis, Mrs. Mary Jenkins of Vincennes, Ind., contracted the same malady and died Friday afternoon. Her former husband, William Jenkins, from whom she was divorced two years ago, was at her bedside when she died, a reconciliation having been effected through the daughter's illness.

The child, Esther, 13 years old, became ill two weeks ago. The mother was notified and forgetting the differences with her former husband, hastened to nurse the little girl. Mrs. Jenkins had a severe cold at the time and contracted pneumonia three days after her arrival. The daughter is out of danger.

Mrs. Jenkins' death was hastened, according to her physician, by her refusal to take any medicine the last 10 hours before her death because she had taken communion. The last rites were administered to her Thursday night and as the stimulants that were necessary to keep up her strength were largely whisky, she refused to take them.

The Jenkins were divorced two years ago. The wife went to Vincennes to reside with relatives, while her husband made his home with his mother at 714 Hall street. The body was taken to Vincennes for burial Saturday morning. Mrs. Jenkins was 37 years old.

The daughter, Esther, spent part of her time with each parent and during her convalescence she urged the doctor to aid her in effecting a reconciliation. The efforts of the child and the doctor were successful and the parents agreed to remarry next month.

ROBBERS CAPTURE TRAIN, BLOW SAFE, ESCAPE WITH $700

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 18.—Southern Railway train No. 35, the United States fast mail, from New Orleans to New York, was held up by five masked men at White Sulphur Springs, four miles from here, at 3:15 o'clock this morning. The express car was dynamited and the contents stolen. About $700 was taken, but none of the passengers were molested.

The robbers escaped in an automobile, and are now thought to be in Hall County, probably bound for North Georgia, where pursuit would be difficult. A posse is on the trail.

The robbers broke down the doors of the railroad station at White Sulphur Springs, bound the night agent and set the alarm for the train to stop.

One man entered the cab, and ordered the engineer to proceed to Lula, a small station several miles away. Two men held up the conductor and express messenger, the other blew open the door of the safe and obtained the money. The train was delayed half an hour.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TENNESSEE HOUSE NEARLY UNANIMOUS

Plea to Taft Tabled Under Misapprehension and Then Is Passed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NASHVILLE, Feb. 18.—The Tennessee House today tabled a resolution offered by Representative Tresevant of Memphis, urging President Taft to call an extra session of Congress to deal with the tariff on the necessities of life, but later in the day, on suggestion that the members did not understand the purpose of the resolution, took it from the table and adopted by almost unanimous vote.

PETITION IN BOTH COLORADO HOUSES

Former Gov. Alva Adams, Senatorial Candidate, Favors Special Session.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DENVER, Colo., Feb. 18.—State Senator S. S. Bellefield introduced today in the Senate a duplicate of the House resolution asking President Taft to call an extra session of Congress to revise the tariff. It will come up for action today. A number of the Republican senators are preparing to make a fight against its adoption. Representative McIntyre's concurrent resolution in the House will not be brought up before Monday.

Former Gov. Alva Adams, senatorial candidate, said of the demand for a special session:

"The revision of the tariff should not be delayed. The Republicans of the United States should support this movement for an extra session for the reason that their leader, President Taft, has frequently declared that the present tariff schedules are not satisfactory to him or his party. A revision of the tariff must come sooner or later, and the sooner the better, not only for the public at large, but also for both political parties."

Representative R. S. Ellison, the Republican floor leader in the House said: "We Republicans do not believe in any general revision at present, but we

CALIFORNIA HAS TARIFF APPEAL

Joint Resolution Is Introduced By Assemblyman L. H. Wilson.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 18.—Assemblyman L. H. Wilson introduced Friday a joint resolution asking President Taft to call a special session of the newly elected Congress for the purpose of taking the tax off necessities of life.

Assemblyman Wilson, who comes from a wealthy farming community of Northern California, is also author of the resolution just adopted by both houses, calling upon Congress to send an adequate fleet to the Pacific Coast and to fortify the Panama Canal. His intense interest in national affairs has prompted him to start the call for an extra session. He has the support of many members of the Legislature, which is overwhelmingly progressive.

The 40-day limit on introduction of bills having expired, the measure was referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, which will decide whether it should have recognition by the House.

TRAIN WRECKERS KILL READING ENGINEER

Derail Locomotive, but Passenger Coaches Stick to the Rails.

TAMAQUA, Pa., Feb. 18.—A desperate attempt at train wrecking in which one man was killed, occurred early today near Lofly Station on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad.

According to railroad officials some one placed an obstruction in a switch, causing the locomotive of a local passenger train to jump the track on a steep embankment.

The engine ran along the ties for a short distance, and then toppled over, and plunged down the incline. Samuel Giltner, engineer, 50 years old, was caught under the locomotive, and crushed to death. His fireman was not injured, nor were any of the passengers who were principally men on their way to work.

When the engine leaped the rails it tore loose from the tender, the latter remained on the roadbed, and only one car left the track.

RENO FIGHT FAKE IS THE OPINION OF CHAMP CLARK

Speaker-to-Be Says Roosevelt and Bryan May Yet Become Preachers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Speaker-to-be Champ Clark, during an address at Calvary Baptist Church of this city last night, alluded to the Jeffries-Johnson fight as "that fake prize fighting affair of July last."

"None of us thinks prize fighting a very agreeable pastime or a nice thing to be fostered by an enlightened people," he said, "yet, 25 years ago prize fighting could be carried on in every state of the union."

"Today it is against the law in nearly every state. Nevada was the last to get in line and it is a pity that she did not enact prohibitive laws against the brutal sport before that great and scandalous fake was pulled off in Reno last July."

Mr. Clark declared that the recent activity of laymen in religious affairs had done much good and that more good was to be expected from this co-operation of the laity with the clergy.

He declared that President Taft, Col. Roosevelt and William Jennings Bryan were qualified to go into the pulpit and preach sermons. He would not be surprised, he said, if Col. Roosevelt or Mr. Bryan ended their lives as preachers.

CANADIANS RESENT ANNEXATION TALK

Some Are Unwilling to Accept President Taft's Denial as Conclusive.

OTTAWA, Canada, Feb. 18.—The continued use of President Taft in the United States is causing resentment in Canada, and, according to some of the leading supporters of the Government may jeopardize the reciprocity measure now before Parliament.

While the Liberals have accepted the message of President Taft to Representative McCall as the true sentiment of the Washington administration, the wave of feeling that has been aroused in the Dominion cannot be ignored, and it is said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier early next week will make a statement in an effort to set at rest the idea that annexation of Canada by the United States is possible.

In some quarters the disavowal of President Taft and Secretary Knox do not carry conviction and the opposition press is furthering the idea that they are the utterances of adroit and clever men, working with the ulterior motive of annexation which Clark and Bennett were too frank to conceal.

GETTING WORSE AND WORSE

Letter From Mrs. Rogers, at Pages Mills, Describing Serious Situation and Final Relief.

"I was so weak," says Mrs. Fannie Rogers in a letter from this place, "that I could scarcely do anything, without getting so nervous I would have to lie down and rest. I hurt all over. The pain in my back and shoulders made me think death was near. I kept getting worse and worse."

I was taken to the doctor, but he only gave me temporary relief. When I discontinued his treatment, I was worse than before I began. At last, my husband bought me some Cardui. It gave me relief as soon as I took it. Now I feel good. Cardui is worth its weight in gold."—Pages Mills, S. C.

AFRICAN GAME TO ADD TO NATION'S SUPPLY OF FOOD

Expedition Prepares to Bring Animals to United States for Propagation.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—To restock the depleted game regions of the United States, with the purpose of increasing the food supply, and incidentally strike a blow at the Leather Trust, is the purpose of an expedition to South Africa to be led by Maj. Frederick Russell Burnham on March 3. Others interested in the introduction of new animals, fish and fowl in America are John Hays Hammond, Gifford Pinchot and Congressman Broussard of Louisiana.

A bill is pending in Congress authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to spend $500,000 in the importation of wild animals, but as it is not likely to be adopted at this session, the men interested in the scheme decided to provide the funds to carry out the plan.

Game to Be Propagated.
"In the semi-arid regions of Africa," said Maj. Burnham, "many easily adaptable animals thrive under conditions that would be disadvantageous to the ordinary domestic animals. They can live off the rough country and are harder than the goat. Their meat is excellent."

"It is proposed, first, to introduce a few of the easier tamed varieties and send them to the South and West. These animals will supply meat to the farmers, as well as the residents of the cities. They thrive on the coarsest food and furnish the finest fur. They weigh from 50 to 150 pounds and can be produced cheaply."

"Throughout the foothill region far into Mexico the bush buck would thrive. It is mostly a browsing animal, about the size of our deer. Its flesh is of very fine flavor and its hide makes one of the strongest leathers known."

Gemsbok Can Kill Lion.
"Another useful animal is the gemsbok. The bucks weigh from 200 to 300 pounds and will fight savagely when hard pressed. It has been known to kill a lion with a single blow. It can live out of the desert on hundred miles from water. Its meat is well flavored and its hide is equal to the best calf."

"It is our purpose to import some of the smaller and more useful animals, send to one of our ranches in the West, and let them become domesticated to distribute them throughout the country."

WIRELESS TELEPHONES ON U. P. TRAINS SOON

Electrical Expert Announces Plans Under Way Will Be Completed Within a Year.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—That the Union Pacific plans to equip its entire system with wireless apparatus for sending messages from moving trains to stations along the line, is the announcement of Dr. Frederick Miller of Omaha, an electrical expert in the employ of the railroad, now in this city.

"We have decided to adopt the wireless telephone, which our experimental work shows to be entirely practicable," Dr. Miller told the New York Railroad Club. "Within a year or so wireless telephoning from moving trains will be a feature of the daily operation of trains on the Union Pacific. Wireless stations will be established this summer at Sidney, Neb., and Cheyenne, Wyo., and 100 miles apart. Wires will be stretched on top of the cars."

"The wireless telephone we have been using in Omaha is sufficiently powerful for messages to be transmitted a considerable distance simply by attaching the receiving apparatus to an ordinary umbrella held over the operator's head. The ordinary telephone head set is used by the person receiving."

FRANKLIN AVENUE TO HAVE MORE LIGHTS

Improvement Association to Incorporate and Contract for More Illumination.

The Franklin Avenue Improvement Association will incorporate to make contracts for the maintenance of lights and other improvements decided upon to benefit the territory it represents. A resolution was adopted by the organization Friday authorizing an application for incorporation papers.

The meeting was addressed by Colin M. Selph, a member of the Million Population Club. He urged the organization to recommend the widening of Twelfth street from Washington to Franklin avenues. He suggested that a publicity agent be appointed to assist in advertising that section of the city.

The Improvement Association is advocating the passage of a bill by the Municipal Assembly providing for double the number of lamps along Franklin avenue. It expects also to contract for from two to four lights in each block.

CHINA EXPECTED TO BOW DOWN TO RUSSIA

Government Unwilling at This Time to Define Its Position.

PEKING, Feb. 18.—The Chinese Foreign Board declines to make a statement concerning Russia's representations with regard to the 11 Province in Chinese Turkestan, but it is not doubted here that China's surrender will be complete. The Chinese Foreign Office recently informed the Russian Minister that it considered the treaty of 1881 one-sided, and intended to renounce it Feb. 25, that being the termination of a decade. Mr. Korotvich presented to China a list of claims, including demands for a delimitation of the frontier in two places where the boundary was disputed.

RETURN OF ELOPERS SPOILS PAPA'S PLAN

Peter Pauley Was Preparing Messages to Keep Son From Getting Marriage License.

When Charles W. Pauley, 19 years old, was given an increase in salary as tower man at Union Station, he decided it was about time for him to get married. He told Miss Audrey Schaeffer, 1028 Dolman street about it. She made no effort to overrule his decision.

Pauley and Miss Schaeffer went to Springfield, Ill., and were married. They returned to St. Louis in time to interrupt the plans of Pauley's father, who was preparing to wire county clerks to refuse a marriage license to his son because he is under age.

Mr. and Mrs. Pauley are living temporarily with the bride's mother at 1028 Dolman street. Mrs. Schaeffer told a reporter Saturday that her daughter and Pauley eloped without her knowledge, but that the marriage was not much of a surprise. The young man's father, Peter Pauley, 1134 Benton street, said that his son and Miss Schaeffer had been sweethearts, and that his son had spoken about getting married some time ago. He objected, he said, because of his son's youth.

THE REPORT ON UNION ELBETRIC.

The report of the Public Utilities Commission comes as a fitting reward for the public's patience. With its suggested reduction of 2 1/2 cents per kilowatt and the reduction of the minimum charge it bespeaks consideration for both Union Electric and the consumer. The company should be glad that the rate is not 3 cents; the public may be glad that a first step toward moderating the excessive cost of electricity has been made.

The report shows on its face the painstaking care the Commission has taken. No avenue of investigation has been missed and the vast amount of information gathered has been tabulated and digested. Certainly the city is in a position to defend any case which Union Electric may file in the courts. The Municipal Assembly should lose no time in acting on the report that the benefits may be realized as soon as possible and the people come into the enjoyment of reduced rates whose adoption has already been too long deferred.

This recommendation is the first fruit of the Post-Dispatch's vigorous and successful campaign to obtain from the Legislature the act enabling cities to regulate the rates and service of public utilities.

A significant feature of the hearing before the Legislative Committee on the Municipal Courts bill was that no one appeared in opposition to it. The campaign against it is entirely of the gum shoe variety.

CAMPAIGN PUBLICITY.

Although the law does not specifically require candidates for the United States Senate in this State to file statements of their campaign expenditures in the primary elections Senator-elect Reed has filed a full sworn statement of his expenditures and the purposes for which the money was spent. This excellent example is one which no candidate can afford to ignore without loss of public confidence and respect.

Public opinion is crystallized on the subject of publicity of campaign expenditures. It is required by a law more binding than statute law. No candidate can refuse to expose his expenditures for election to office without practical conviction of attempting to corrupt the electorate. This is particularly the case with Senatorial elections, in which money has been used so often for corrupt purposes.

The Convocation of Canterbury is considering proposed modifications of the decalogue, but there has been no threat of an extra session if the amendments don't pass.

A FACT IN WORLD GEOGRAPHY.

The Mississippi and the Missouri are the greatest rivers of the Northern Hemisphere. From Broadway, St. Louis, the "Ozark uplift," which begins where St. Louis was founded at the foot of Walnut street, rises gradually to its first crest, after which from crest to crest, it rises to its crowning plateau in Southwest Missouri.

The first crest is the great "divide" between the valleys of the Missouri and the Mississippi. It belongs to the St. Louis County suburbs of St. Louis. The public building located on it, to command such a sweep of both valleys as is now commanded by Capitol Hill at Jefferson City over the Missouri Valley only, would have the most remarkable site in the Northern Hemisphere.

As this is a fact of the world's geography, Missourians who invite demonstration can convince themselves by taking a geography and studying it out for themselves. No other country, no other state, has the opportunity Missouri now has, to locate its capitol on the crest of the "divide" between the two greatest rivers of the Northern Hemisphere, so as to command both their valleys.

Amalgamated Copper has issued orders from 36 Broadway that Walsh is not to be Senator from Montana. Thus ends the brief dream of the people of Montana that they had something to say about it.

HUMAN LEGISLATION.

The nine-hour work day for women, the bill for state-wide factory inspection and the child labor bill are proposed works of legislation dictated by humane impulse and in harmony with progress and a sound public policy. All should forthwith be placed on the statute books of Missouri.

It is a humiliating thought that Missouri should be the last in the line of progressive action: In the struggle against the dominant spirit of commercialism a little headway has been made, but the cradle has not yet been made immune from industrial draft, woman is still regarded as the packhorse of savagery and the law takes no account of the abuses possible in factories located in cities under 10,000 in population.

The official report of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics is quoted by the Committee for Social Legislation to show that "an unprecedented number of factories sprang up outside of St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph" in 1908. It is a bad law which interferes with the natural selection of industrial sites. It is obviously an evil law which makes lack of inspection and the absence of wholesome rules of regulation of child labor the determining factors in such selection. These matters are, however, of less importance than the conservation of human life and the making of good citizens. To give children a chance to develop normally and secure the necessary education, to prevent the decadence of physical womanhood, to insure safe and healthful surroundings for workers are the purposes of these bills. They are the product of painstaking and expert study. The need of them has been shown by experience. Thirty-six states have them. Is Missouri going to lag longer behind?

SPOILS VS. JUSTICE.

The situation with regard to the St. Louis municipal courts bill in the State Legislature has been clearly defined in the Post-Dispatch's Jefferson City correspondence. Two obstacles to the passage of the measure are conspicuous:

1. The opposition of the Republican members from St. Louis on account of the supposed partisan advantage the present Justice of the Peace system gives to the party in power, through the use of the courts to reward politicians with the spoils of office and official abuses.

2. The practice of logrolling which will be utilized by country members willing to support the vicious spoils program of the St. Louis Republican members in return for Republican votes for their pet measures.

The attitude of the St. Louis legislators who oppose the municipal courts bill is base and contemptible. Disregarding all considerations of justice, humanity and the welfare of the poorer people of this city, they sustain a bad system of law administration, with its rotten abuses for the sole and sordid purpose of procuring the activity of ward bosses and their henchmen in behalf of the party machine. Not one argument do they offer against the measure which would receive a moment's consideration from an intelligent, decent citizen. Their opposition is underground; their arguments are offers of logrolling bargains and threats; their weapon is the stiletto; their motive is the spoils at the expense and the misery of those who seek justice in the courts of the poor. Some of the Republican members who are trying to defeat this measure of reform for the re-establishment of justice, propriety and honesty in the poor-court system are repudiating their own arguments and accepting their own condemnation. Because their party has come into power, they are taking upon themselves the denunciations they poured on the Democrats when the latter opposed a similar bill two years ago for similar despicable reasons.

Let there be no mistake or deception on the part of the legislators outside of St. Louis with regard to this bill. It represents a reform necessary to protect poor litigants from the grossest injustice and to protect the ignorant and helpless from outrageous spoliation and abuse under the form and authority of law. No selfish interest is supporting the bill; on the contrary the opposition is wholly selfish and sordid. The adoption of the bill is urged—prayed for earnestly as a measure of relief from intolerable conditions by an overwhelming majority of the citizens of St. Louis—by all who are not moved by spoils considerations.

How shocking it would be if Kuhn, Loeb & Co. should discover that the bridge arbitrary is just as bad for the railroads as for St. Louis.

SMOKE STATISTICS.

In its crusade against smoke Chicago may have made but little headway toward ultimate abatement of the nuisance but it has gathered some marvelous statistics. It ascertained to a mathematical certainty long ago just how many tons of cinders were showered on the city every day, every week, every month and every year. It computed with equal exactness the damage done by these showers. It estimated expertly and scientifically the influence of the smoke on Chicago's growth and desirability as a place of residence, and it has now put the railroads to flight with facts and figures as to their share in the creation of the smoke nuisance.

Chicago has investigated and learned that locomotives use 18 1/2 per cent of the coal consumed within the city and make 48 per cent of the total smoke and 50 per cent of the total dirt. The excess of dirt over smoke is due to the fact that 10 per cent of the coal used by locomotives is discharged from the stack in the form of cinders. Of these 14 carloads are showered indiscriminately on Chicago daily. "Thus," says the Chicago Tribune, "do railroads which say they need higher freight rates and more money waste their fuel."

And Chicago with characteristic nerve, proposes to compel the railroads to electrify their systems.

St. Louis hasn't got along nearly so far. It hasn't even the statistics. It hasn't even a statistician. But it has the smoke. Mr. Parker seems to think that it is holy smoke.

Gen. Navarro is plainly a wise man. He knows if he waits long enough the insurgents will go to fighting each other.

MR. TAFT'S NEW DANGER.

William Howard Taft might as well make up his mind for the worst. The sword of Damocles is hanging over his head. Damon has deserted Pythias. Where once his praises were sung in daily psalms of joy, there will be only silent scowls of disapproval. For, be it known the Globe-Democrat, high priest in the sanctuary of special privilege, is about to bolt.

"Does the President want to split the party which elected him?" it asks querulously with a tear-stained copy of the unorthodox and barbaric reciprocity measure before it. "Does he imagine that a proposition which is supported chiefly by Democrats is just the right sort of a measure for a Republican President to push?"

"Every Republican," it continues in melancholy mood, "would like to see harmony in his party, especially on the eve of a presidential campaign, but—"

It is an ominous "but."

—but there are principles and traditions which are dearer to true Republicans than harmony."

It is said in grief not in anger. It is no process of coercion. Our neighbor will make no demonstration on the frontier of the White House. But the implication is clear. Henceforth Mr. Taft will have to run the country alone.

News comes from Butte, Mont., that a petition to re-establish that city's red-light district has been presented to the Council and that the petition is signed by "Butte's leading business men." It was at Butte, some ten years ago, that Mary MacLane prayed to be united with the Devil. Mary did not really know Butte, or she would have stayed there.

It is noticeable that Russia's threat against China includes no proposal to send battleships or make a naval demonstration.

In some Oklahoma sections water sells at $1 per barrel. Prohibition comes high.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Park Ball Grounds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.—A few days ago while walking through Forest Park I visited the ball grounds, and regret to say that I saw them in just the same condition as they were this time one year ago, saying nothing of previous years. As an amateur sportsman I enjoy spending part of a holiday playing ball, and most always go to the park as a great many of my friends do, but it is small enjoyment derived after one sprains a joint in the many ruts and gullies throughout the grounds.

Mr. Editor, could you agitate this through your columns and boost for decent public grounds? In your paper a few days ago I read of New York making an expensive recreation ground for girls only, but we cannot have one good enough to play "Mumble Peg" on. Why don't the Park Commissioners lay out four or five diamonds on the grounds just west of the old Lindell Pavilion? It is level, handy to cars and is where visitors can see the liberality of our Park Commissioners. Yours for a boost, G. M. H.

Father Dunne Nominated.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.—In view of the fact that the "Initiative and referendum" has no existence in the city under our unadorned charter, it may be presumption upon the part of a private citizen to even suggest to "the powers that be" the name of a logical successor for an office under the city government recently made vacant by order of the one in authority. We refer to the superintendency of the Industrial School. However, if such a thing is not inconsistent, the writer would like to suggest the name of the one man who, in the humble opinion of many who know him, is certainly the man for the place. We mean the Rev. P. J. Dunne, known far and wide for his great work for boys, in the establishing and successful conduct, of the Newboys' Home and Protectorate, at 3010 Washington avenue, this city.

No man on earth has a like ability to handle youngsters of the age of those which comprise the population of this above mentioned city institution. This, together with good business judgment would, we think, fulfill all the requirements for a head of an institution such as the Industrial School. The very worst cases of delinquents which now come occasionally under his care from the Juvenile Court, and who no other man on earth could control without resorting to corporal punishment, are ruled simply by moral suasion by Father Dunne, in the same manner as the most ill-mannered, soft-spoken youth in his ever-increasing family.

If you think well of this or any of your readers like the idea why not "boost" it to the Mayor? A FRIEND OF FATHER DUNNE'S.

Country Store Merchandise.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.—The plea that parcels post would ruin the merchants in the small towns would have more weight if the merchants in those towns would show more enterprise and regard for those whom they desire as customers. A family of my acquaintance who reside at a country town in Missouri ask me to send them from St. Louis various articles which they find they simply cannot get in good quality at their home town, though it is a county seat and has nearly a dozen stores, some quite pretentious. They keep no sardines but the 6-cent brands; butter and cheese are inferior and bacon is sometimes so black they are compelled to return it. As for good hams, they are unobtainable. Last summer when I was down there I helped my friend to build a shed, and we used the local "butter," bought at a big "supply company" to grease our saws; that was all it was fit for. And the cheese was of that tasteless, poor quality which is not worth 10 cents a pound. In dry goods it is the same story. About the only two things up to the St. Louis standard are ready-made clothing for men and boys and hardware. Parcels post would certainly be a godsend to the country merchant, as it would compel him to wake up and play the game.

Don't Be Discouraged.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.—"Father" asks who is the matter with those who started a fight on the vicious postcards, can answer for myself only. As the Chief of Police, the Archbishop and the School Superintendent evidently bow to the decision of Judge Pollard, there is nothing left for an obscure citizen like myself but to follow suit.

"Father" is the only one to write you on the subject, out of all the interested Fathers and Mothers. I am somewhat consoled, however, by the reflection that if such sources of evil were cut off, the occupation of many judges, prosecuting attorneys, policemen, preachers, etc., would be gone, and there are already too many idle men.

CELTIC-AMERICAN.

Not Condemned for Poverty.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.—I want to say a few words through the columns of your paper—the people's paper—in behalf of the Brotherhood Welfare Association, founded by James Eads How. I am a member of that association, and I am not ashamed of it either. Any person "down and out," or otherwise, is welcome to the shelter and warmth of its reading rooms. Now, consider the conditions in this city, for instance. The Brotherhood Welfare Association's reading room is at 900 Walnut street. Any man who is destitute or otherwise, stranger to the city or native, is welcome to this reading room and to partake of the privileges thereof; such privileges as sitting in the shelter and warmth and reading the association's reading matter, such as magazines and the city daily and Sunday papers, and many other privileges. You don't have to be a member to have these privileges, neither do you have to pay anything.

Mr. James Eads How instituted and supports this institution for the welfare of down-trodden men. Mr. How don't pretend to be a saint. He is doing this for the love he has for his fellow-men.

In the Brotherhood Welfare Association the poor men's self-respect and honor is built up, and they extend their hands in fellowship and call each other brother, whereas in some of the so-called missions the poor men are considered to be scapegraces and felons, and the stigmatize as the result of their place, although, from the moral standpoint, they may be as good as those who condemn them.

FRED ASHWOOD.

"REVISE IT? WATCH ME!"

JUST A MINUTE.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

AT THE WOMAN'S CLUB.

We had a pretty how-to-do
At the club a day or so ago.
The theme was Maurice Maeterlinck—
The Belgian dramatist, you know.
Well, anyway, we had no more
Than started out when it became Quite plain that we were not agreed
On how we should pronounce the name.

The President arose. She said:
"I should have earlier announced
For your enlightenment the way
In which the subject is pronounced.
The Culture Club will make itself
Much less ridiculous, I think,
If all of us will take the pains
To call him Maurice May-ter-link."

At which a murmur rose, and one
Well versed in literary lore
Made bold to say, "It seems to me
The club were rendered but the more
Ridiculous to call it that.
When truth we can't afford to blink
Compels admission that it is More properly called Met-ter-link."

A number laughed. "I was abroad
Last year," said Mrs. Parishat,
And I must say this is the first Attempt I've heard to call it that.
In Brussels, where they ought to know,
The better people always link
The 'a' and 'e' to make the broad Pronunciation—Mau-ter-link."

A widespread titter. "I myself,"
Said Mrs. Peacock, "was in France
Last year, and more: I met the man
We are discussing at a dance.
I well remember it, because
That afternoon I got my pink
Chiffon from Paul Poiret. The man
I met was Maurice Met-ter-link."

And then it was that Mrs. Jones,
Whose lord is an electric man,
Got up and glared around the place,
With angry flaring of her fan.
"I may say I have been at no
Small pains and not a little link
To find this out," she said. "The name
Is properly called Met-ter-link."

A peal of laughter greeted this.
And that great satirist, Miss Witt,
Arose and said, "That seems to me
A simple way to get at it.
I don't know anything about
The matter. All the same, (a wink)
I have a car, and therefore, would Suggest we call it Met-ter-link."

IN DEFENSE.

That political solemnity
Which threatens to defeat
Reciprocity with Canada
Makes applicable to Champ Clark himself
A story he tells of Henry Clay.

Clay was once guilty
Of some political indiscretion, and one day he met in the Kentucky mountains a constituent who was inclined to desert him.

"Tom," said the immortal
Henry, "is that a good rifle you have there?"

"Best in Kentucky,"
"Tom, did that rifle ever miss fire?"

"Yes—s—once."
"But you didn't want to get rid of it because it missed fire that once?"

"No, sub."
"See here, Tom. I've always been faithful, haven't I?"

"Yes, sub."
"Never missed fire but this once."
"No, sub."
"Now, Tom, you'll give me the same kind of a square deal you've given your old rifle, won't you?"

"Since you put it that way, I will, sub."

Mr. Clark might adapt that argument to his own advantage just now in the Ninth Missouri. All he would have to do would be to make it automobiles instead of rifles.

Him: Are you fond of

IF Your Hair Is Red Do Not Make Yourself an Orange Scheme

A Lecture on the Art of Dress by Robert Henri, Who Objects to Lectures on Art. Done in an Interview for the Post-Dispatch.

By Nixola Greeley-Smith.

"BEAUTY is within the reach of the poor as well as of the rich," declared Henry Turner Bailey in a lecture before the Boston Museum of Fine Arts the other day.

And beauty, according to Mr. Bailey's definition, is color. The woman who wants to be well dressed, he said, should find her own color and then dress herself in harmony with that in some monochromatic scheme. "There is no excuse," he declared, "for anybody's disturbing the peace with color."

"We loved color primarily as color, without reference to environment, use of its relation to other things. Children like brilliant color for its own sake. There is no reason why they shouldn't have it."

Yesterday in Robert Henri's studio, surrounded by a goodly company of vital and purposeful men who have come to life under his insurgent brush, I asked this artist, whose life and work stand for independence in art, for his opinion of this Boston dictum of color.

"Color is the manifestation of life, health, growth and emotion," he said. "The red of a young woman's cheeks is very beautiful because it has for us the significance of life, health, youth, and possibly the emotion of the moment. Some artists may paint a woman's neck for the mere beauty of line, but I would have it painted for the meaning in the lines—the two kinds of emotion of love, particularly maternal love, which they express."

"The public is in need of developing a sense of color," Mr. Henri added. "Women more particularly." I suggested, "since a man cannot apply his color sense to his costume except in the matter of neckties."

But Mr. Henri was inclined to think that masculine attire offers opportunities for harmony in the details I had mentioned.

"I rarely go out without seeing some manifestation of color which I find delightful," he said. "Even a woman should develop her own color scheme, just as a painter chooses colors which relate harmoniously to the subject of his picture."

"Women who have what we call red hair often make of themselves an orange color scheme."

"I knew a brown-haired girl once who wore a brown hat, not brown dress, brown shoes, who had her cards and note paper engraved in brown, used brown ink and in the interests of harmony threatened to marry a man named Brown and to send her son to Brown University."

"Sometimes," said Mr. Henri more seriously, "the color of the eyes may be taken as the initial note. Again the hair. If you put a bright yellow along side a dull yellow, the dull shade will move in the direction of purple. In some cases therefore a yellow woman wears a certain shade of yellow to her detriment, while another shade of the same color might greatly benefit her complexion. Hence there can be no hard and fast rule.

"I don't believe in laying down rules for any one," exclaimed Mr. Henri earnestly. "Too much of modern education is merely dictation. Nobody will ever realize the true appreciation of color until he is free thinking individual. I don't care for art for art's sake, but only as it means advancement toward the science of living."

"There is only one thing I consider a lower vice than lecturing on art and that is listening to lectures on art," added Mr. Henri, falling suddenly into the full insurgent stride.

"The way to get to know about color, about harmony, about pictures is to go to the pictures themselves. The learned lecturer comes and his authority imposes itself mightily upon the banker, who says, 'Surely this learned man should know more about taste than I, because his trade is discoursing on taste and mine is banking.'"

"But the banker is wrong—for there is common horse sense at the bottom of all good art."

"It requires much more horse sense than acquired culture from books and lectures on taste to understand pictures."

"What do you think of the idea that America is behind Europe in the general appreciation of art?" I asked.

"We are all in the depths of ignorance as regards art and as regards life," Mr. Henri answered.

"But the criticism of American taste has become too common."

"They so like to say: 'Even the peasants in Europe are art lovers.' They patronize Americans—tell them they are young, energetic, new nation makers, who have not had time for education up to high-art standards."

"In America there is as good sense for the understanding of good art as there is in Europe anywhere."

"The peasants and the general public in Europe are not lovers of good art any more than are the peasants and the general public here."

"The man who has integrity, honesty, the love of inquiry, the desire to see beyond, is ready to appreciate good art. He needs no one to educate him for it."

Suddenly Mr. Henri smiled and his smile blended irony and tolerant understanding.

"There are two things people think they are able to criticize," he said. "The thing they know about is one, and Art is the other."

A New Department Conducted for the Post-Dispatch

By Mildred Lodewick.

I. Dress for a Child.

WHITE lingerie dress for a small child, made in one piece, with a shaped yoke of all-over Swiss embroidery outlined with Val lace. A shaped band similar in effect to the yoke trims the bottom of the skirt and is edged with Val lace.

II. Frock in White Linen.

WHITE linen frock, made with a wide panel extending from the shoulders to within a hem's width of the bottom of the dress. This is hand embroidered and buttonholed in scallops, as is also the little cap sleeves. A large Irish lace collar and turn-back cuffs add a dainty touch to the dress, together with a soft colored ribbon or black velvet sash, which slips through the front and back panels.

III. In Light Blue Chambray.

LIGHT blue French chambray dress, made with kimono sleeves, which are edged with a bias band of white plique, coming to a point on the top of the sleeves and finished with three tiny pearl buttons. A bias band of the white also finishes the neck opening, crossing in the front to a point, with three of the tiny pearl buttons on the left side, while the right side continues down to the waist, holding in place a lace frill, such as finishes the sleeves. A wide black satin sash is worn.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

WILL you kindly advise me how to make a dress of inclosed sample, and what kind and color trimming it should use? Age, 16 years. E. K.

I think your goods will look well made with a deep band on the bottom, piped with the top with Alice blue. A yoke effect on the waist crossing to one side in a point and piped with blue would be pretty.

Dear Fashion Editor.

I HAVE four yards 54 inches wide of inclosed sample. Have I enough for a suit? Would you suggest a tailor-made or a dress suit? W. B. A.

If you cut the material yourself economically you have sufficient. I would advise a tailor-made suit.

Dear Fashion Editor.

PLEASE give me advice about the making of two dresses, one a shell pink crepe meter, the other dark blue messaline. I'd like them for parties and street wear. I am 20 years old and rather stout. MISS McC.

Your crepe meter would not be suitable for street wear, but it could be made very pretty for party and evening wear by making the waist and sleeves in one, with straps of iridescent banding over the shoulders which continue under the belt and down the skirt to a point below the knees, where the trim is caught up under it with a beaded tassel hanging below. The sleeves also should be finished with the banding, while the front of the waist between the straps and the wide belt is of all-over lace. Your messaline could be made with a slightly full skirt, having a seam on each hip and two rows of the tiniest satin buttons outlining them. The waist could have a deep V yoke of fine lace and the tiny buttons outlining the shoulder seams. A heavy tarnished silver cord could define the waist line.

Dear Fashion Editor.

I HAVE a white waist to make of very thin material, with a heavier bar and leaf in it. Would like to make it so that I could have an opening on the right side. Can you offer any suggestion? "HOOSIER."

You might make your waist peasant style and have a piece of the material outlined with Cluny insertion from the top of the sleeves, coming to the front and forming a panel, but in the back a yoke. You could then have an opening on the right side.

Worse Still.

AT the last election two laboring men were discussing politics (and religion) in the public bar of the Red Lion. Jones was a true blue Tory, while Smith was a Radical of the deepest dye. The argument was fierce.

"Ah, well," remarked Jones, at length, "you can't get away from the fact that Mr. Robinson's a puffball gentleman. A reel torf, 'e is. Only the other day 'e sent me a rabbit for my dinner."

"Oh, 'e did, did 'e?" snapped Smith. "Well, that's wot we calls bribery."

Jones began to get alarmed.

"Well, that rabbit was a trifle 'igh," he replied, deprecatingly.

"Wuss still," thundered Smith; "if you call that bribery and corruption—" "Tut, tut!"

A Canticle of Love

By Helen Rowland.

Love Poet to the Post-Dispatch.

TODAY I thank the Bon Dieu for having sent me: A "Fairy Prince."

The most charming of lovers.
The best and truest of friends.
The most enterprising of companions.
The most inspiring of "pals."
The most fascinating of "flirts."
The most congenial of chums.
The most honorable of gentlemen.
The most adorable of men!
Oh, patron saint of Lovers, accept my devotions!
And likewise my gratitude:
That you have sent me REAL love and a real lover.
That you have kept his heart and mine young and clean.
That you have brought us together and watched over us until we looked into one another's eyes—and UNDERSTOOD.
That you have given us beautiful dreams and preserved our illusions.
That you have built gardens by the riverside and hung moons and sunsets above the rippling waters.
That you have decorated the world with flowers and hung a necklace of stars above the sky.
That you have taught us the secret way to Fairyland and the path to the end of the world.
That you have lead us to the pot of gold at the rainbow's edge and pointed our clouds with rose and silver!
Thine be the praise and the glory, and ours the happiness forever and ever—'til the last kiss!
AMEN!

Schools for Waiters.

IN the British metropolis there are three schools for waiters which attempt to teach the rudiments of what is, on the whole, a difficult and not unremunerative art, and to one of these academies a writer in the Strand recently paid a visit.

In a long room occupied by three square tables, with a mirror at one end and a pair of balise-covered pushers at the other, a group of 11 young men are listening to the exhortations of a professor.

"The first thing you've got to do is to be clean," he says; "the second thing is to be quick, and the third thing is to be graceful. By graceful I don't mean you've got to imitate the Apollo Belvedere or a dancing master, but you must be awkward in your movements. And you've got to have a good memory. There's nothing annoys a customer so much as a waiter saying he 'forgot.'"

"And now, gents, if you'll give me your attention, we'll begin at the beginning—table laying." Forthwith a cloth was produced and, with the assistance of a pupil, a demonstration given of how a table should be laid—plates, knives, forks and glasses, bread, salt, napkins and the rest.

"There are as many ways of folding napkins as there are of cooking eggs—namely, 74; but the leading ways recommended in the best houses are these." Here the professor slowly performed several simple feats in napkin-folding, after which he proceeded:

"We now, with our kind friend's assistance, assume that a dinner has sat down. Now, of course, I needn't tell you that diners are of various kinds, each of which has to have rather different treatment. We'll begin this morning with restaurant diners. The customer arrives. If he hasn't been previously to the cloakroom, which in this class is probable, you must bow—like this—and take his hat, coat and umbrella, and placing them on a chair for a moment, help him to be seated and hand him the menu. While he is studying the menu you dispose of his hat and coat and return, taking up your position on his right—like this."

According to the professor, there is much virtue in an attitude.

"The exact pose you ought to assume in various circumstances is not to be learned in a day. A year's study hardly do it. I know one waiter who Demosthenes.

RANTING, for the sake of the Comparison, equal Powers of Spielbinding to William Jennings Bryan and the Subject of this Effusion, and admitting that Both would finish neck and neck in the Bound-to-Win Handicap for the Perseverance Plate, there yet remains one small Regrettable Difference, to wit, Demosthenes took Poison and Died ages and ages ago, while W. J. still lives—in the Back Files of the Newspapers.

Politically speaking, the Comparison exists, for even the Robust Constitution of the Nebraskan Orator will never recover from the Repeated Doses of the 18 to 1 Solution of the Democratic College of Pharmacy, specially Prepared by the Boss Druggist himself.

As for the Perseverance Thing, outside of Battling Nelson, Doctor Cook and the aforesaid William J., we have to Hand it to Demosthenes.

He was a Sticker from Plodtown, a Plugger from the Cut Plug County, and the Human Personification of the Fable of the Tortoise and the Hare, Demosthenes being the Cheese Tartufo.

He wanted to be an Orator, which is the Fancy Name for a Political Barker, and consists in Coining New Words and Old Money. A laudable ambition, to say the least.

But Demosthenes had a Bunch of Physical Drawbacks. He stuttered and his voice was weaker than this country's call for Roosevelt to be President in 1913. He had a tripping tongue, all right, but it tripped over his two Front Teeth, the Pride of Youth, and Pail down his Lower Lip. Obviously, he couldn't orate under such circumstances, so he started in to cure himself

ONLY CONTRACT SIGNERS MAY GO TO WEST BADEN

Bresnahan Declares He'll Have No Malcontents on Trip to Indiana.

WOULD LIKE FULL SQUAD

Baseball Togs Will Be Taken and Used if March Weather Proves Favorable.

MANAGER ROGER BRESNAHAN of the Cardinals announced before leaving for his home in Toledo, Friday night, that he would not permit any member of his team to make the training trip to West Baden next month unless he had signed his contract. Failure to sign in time before the training junket begins will mean that the player will have to pay his own way to the Indiana resort.

Bresnahan isn't contemplating any trouble with any of his men. But he doesn't want to have the training season marred by the presence of disgruntled players. He is eager to have everybody signed up before the real work begins.

"Some of the men have not sent in their contracts yet," said Manager Bresnahan to the Post-Dispatch. "That doesn't mean that we have a bunch of holdouts, though. I look for some to bring their contracts with them when they report for the training trip. Nobody will get on that train, though, who hasn't signed."

All Signers to Make Trip. Bresnahan would like to have every member of the squad make the trip to West Baden. In the notices sent to the men to report here no later than March 5 are instructions to bring baseball uniforms, gloves and shoes. While the weather may not permit the men to do any baseball playing during the short stay at West Baden, Bresnahan wants everybody to be in readiness for batting, throwing and pitching practice if he is favored with a warm climate while in Indiana.

Near the hotel at West Baden is a bicycle track in the inclosure of which is a baseball field. Bresnahan has been laid out and will enable the men to participate in a regular game if the Duke decides it is warm enough.

Roger will be satisfied, however, if the men are able to sip waters there and do a lot of ball-fiddling to reduce weight. The real work will begin after the team returns to League Park. Roger will have to take off 12 pounds.

"HORAN" DAY SHOULD DRAW BIG CROWD

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Horan day will be celebrated Friday, May 26, at Comiskey Park, with the big feature of an elaborate benefit program to be a championship game between the Chicago Americans and the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics. President Johnson of the American League and Owner Comiskey of the Chicago Americans yesterday perfected plans for the occasion, which was suggested by the local magnates immediately after the death of the first chief of the stockyards poloists, two months ago.

In the schedule adopted by the American League, May 26 is an open date following the first series between the Philadelphia and Chicago teams.

FORD NOT HOLDING OUT ON HAL CHASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Manager Hal Chase installed himself in the office of the New York American League club today and sprang into his managerial duties by receiving interviews. Hal announced right off the bat that he has practically signed Russell Ford, who was the pitcher mainstay of the Highlanders last season for 1911.

"I had a long talk with Ford out in Minneapolis a few days ago," said the youthful manager of the Highlanders, "and he has no grievance against the New York American League club. He did fire with that D. A. Fletcher scheme for a while, but I have his word and that of several others that he never even signed an official agreement with the Toledo promoter."

New Record in "Four Forty"

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Jim Rosenberger, the grayhound of the Irish-American Athletic Club, won the suburban quarter at Lake Success of Philadelphia, finished second in the Thirtieth Regiment Armory, last night, and in doing so hung up a new armory record. William Hayes, the national champion of Philadelphia, finished second and Melvin Sheppard was third. Rosenberger traveled the distance in 30.2 seconds, two-fifths of a second from the mark hung up by Harry Hillman seven years ago.

Daniels to Box Sheridan. ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 18.—Freda Daniels of St. Joseph and Mickey Sheridan of Chicago were matched last night for a 15-round bout here on Feb. 25. The scrap will be held at the Casino Club.

FORTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

ADRIAN C. CAP ANSON.

Chapter VII. I Help Win the Pennant. NEITHER the president nor the captain of Chicago has worried a little bit over my threat to break my contract. Spalding certainly knew me well enough to recognize my bluff as the final kick of a man who wouldn't go back on his word, no matter what his personal likes and dislikes might be. When it came to the scratch there was nothing to do but fix it up the best I could with the prospective Mrs. Anson and turn my face toward the setting sun.

So I submitted meekly, put on the Chicago uniform and started in to do my best to help win the coveted pennant for the Lake Michigan metropolis. During the winter of 1875-76 the National League was formed. Morgan G. Bulkeley of Hartford, Conn., afterward Governor and now United States Senator from that State was its first president and filled the position one season, being succeeded by Mr. Hulbert.

I guess I could remember the make-up of the Chicago team in the first season of the National League without consulting my diary, but to make sure I see that it was as follows: A. G. Spalding, pitcher, captain and manager; James White, catcher; A. C. Anson, third base; Ross Barnes, second base; Cal McVey, first base; J. P. Peters, shortstop; J. W. Glenn, left field; Paul A. Hines, center field; Robert Adair, right field. As I have said already, four of these were coaxed away from the pennant-winning Bostonians and a fifth—who was myself—was snatched bodily from the Philadelphia Athletics.

"Stolen Big Four" Help Chicago Nine Defeat Champion Bostonians

WISH you could have seen and heard the ovation the "Big Four" received when they put in an appearance. The crowd was so tickled to see the old favorites that the fact that the players were now members of a hostile team was lost sight of for the time being. The game that followed was played under unusual conditions, but it was one of the most enjoyable I ever took part in. Harry Wright, the Boston manager, made a heroic attempt to run up a score, but Spalding's excellent pitching made it impossible for the Beaneaters to win. As a result we beat them and this made them sorer than ever over the purloining of the "Big Four." I don't remember that I did anything sensational on that occasion. If I did it failed to get into my diary.

On Sept. 23 we met Boston for the tenth and last time that season. We were mighty anxious to make our account against the club 10 straight victories, but we were doomed to disappointment. I suppose that our nine previous successes made us overconfident, or perhaps it was our anxiety that made us shaky, for we failed to win, being beaten by a score of 10 to 9. I've got to tell you, though, that 1878 was a mighty poor season for the White Stockings. KIRK OFFERS TO BOX THREE MEN

Missouri A. C. Star Asks to Meet McGovern, Dalwitz and German in Ring Tonight.

Bob Douglas's Knights of Columbus club boxing show will conclude for the season, Saturday night, with the best amateur program that has been arranged since the series started. Oliver Kirk of the M. A. C. and "Chaiky" German of the Business Men's Gymnasium will furnish the feature entertainment and a rattling go it should prove. Both are tried hands at the mit game.

Kirk, incensed at not being chosen a member of the team which Eddie Randall is taking South for the Mardi Gras dual meet with the Young Men's Gymnasium boxers of New Orleans, made a proposition to also take on Benny McGovern and Charley Dalwitz (two men go South), at tonight's show. If Randall will let them, he expected to show the M. A. C. instructor where he made a mistake.

The proposal has not been accepted. Following are the other bouts carded: 110 pounds—Ed Meyer, B. M. G. vs. Albert Brown, B. M. G.; 112 pounds—Harry Wade, B. M. G. vs. John Claves, B. M. G.; 120 pounds—Frank Germain, B. M. G. vs. Oliver Kirk, M. A. C.; 125 pounds—Frank Fischer, B. M. G. vs. Alex. Schenk, K. of C.; 135 pounds—Tom Lester, B. M. G. vs. Richard Garton, K. of C.; Joe Genail, K. of C. vs. J. W. Fields, Alton, vs. Joe Burke, K. of C.

Keyes Easy for Moore.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—With neatness and dispatch in a manner artistic and quick, Pat Moore of Philadelphia gave Bert Keyes a fine trouncing in a ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club last night. It was a case of a fine, clever boxer with a stiff punch against a hard-hitting, fierce fighting man, who was unable to locate his adversary. Consequently, Moore made Keyes' work look crude by comparison.

Twins Sullivan to Meet O'Keefe. DENVER, Colo., Feb. 18.—Jack (Twins) Sullivan and Johnny O'Keefe of Denver have been matched to box 10 rounds here before the Independent Athletic Club, March 8.

Giants Reach Marlin. MARLIN, Tex., Feb. 18.—The advance guard of the New York National League team, Gowdy, Fullerton, Hanes and Lusk, reached Marlin, Texas, Saturday.

At the Rex billiard hall, Layton won H. W. 42 to 31. In a three-cushion tournament, high run for winner, 4; loser, 2. Simons meets Zell Saturday night.

In the straight-rail pool tournament, Beck won from Payton, 59 to 42. Mathews and Hamner meet Saturday night.

Mueller defeated Keith, 100 to 81, in the State pool tournament at the Regal Friday night. Sunday night Layton will meet Simons.

KILAGE PARK IS PROPER SPOT FOR FOOTBALL FINAL

Soccer Fan Suggests Neutral Grounds as Scene of St. Leo-St. Teresa Battle.

A fair solution to the wrangle over the scene of the coming championship game for the soccer football title in St. Louis is offered the managements of the St. Leo and St. Teresa by Theodore Fesenfeldt, manager of the Harrison football team.

In a letter Mr. Fesenfeldt suggests that the St. Leo request to have the game played on their own grounds is unfair for two reasons:

That as Athletic Park is the home park of the St. Leo and that therefore the play of the visiting team would be broken up for a time, until it became accustomed to the shorter field. Also,

That as Athletic Park is the home park of the St. Leo, the crowd, which would attend would naturally favor that club.

Mr. Fesenfeldt suggests that the championship ought to be settled on a neutral ground of regulation size, such as Kilage's Park.

This proposition will be taken up by both clubs and probably adopted.

Manager Pat Lavin of the St. Rose soccer football team is hot on the trail of Manager Burke of the St. Teresa. The amateur champions' leader has offered to play Burke's aggregation on the basis of winner take all the gate receipts. In order to settle the argument as to which team should have the privilege of meeting the St. Leo.

All Lavin asks is that the game be played on neutral grounds, for he is confident that the West End aggregation is second only to the champion St. Leo.

When he called on Burke the latter said that the reason he would not play was because his team was a professional aggregation, while Lavin's was an amateur eleven.

SECOND GIANT SQUAD DEPARTS FOR TEXAS

The second squad of the players whom Johnny McGraw will attempt to whip into championship form this year, and which assembled at the Panthers Hotel here Friday, departs today for Marlin, Texas, where the club will begin spring training at once. The first bunch of giants left New York last Saturday. A third lot is due at Marlin before the following Saturday.

The Giants were in charge of Arlie Latham and Sidney Mercer. They were Rustenhaven, Jenkins, Teresue, Raymond, Hendricks, Nagle and McKnight. Wilbert Robinson and Boseman Bulger were also of the party.

I am glad that he lived to see his scheme in successful operation.

COLUMBUS CLUB FIGHTER WHO OPPOSES JACK PEZOLT TONIGHT

WRAY'S COLUMN

By Way of Contrast. TANTALUS had nothing on Washington University athletes in the matter of longings ungratified.

When Mikevaymen look about the college world and see the affluence, the favors and the liberties that undergraduates elsewhere enjoy, it must take a job's patience to rest content with a lot so barren of similar joys.

Just at present poverty is the worst affliction (next to the faculty) that the athletes from Francis Field experience. There is not enough receipts from the sports there to make it certain that there will even be teams representing the schools in all athletic lines.

Sure to Happen Some Day. This is a thing that is sure to transpire one day. Either that or the baseball world will be ripped up by some state eight who, disgusted at failure to obtain anything like proper recognition, will devote time and a little money to taking the matter into court. Once there the baseball trust will be shredded. Its blacklist, its denial of free agency to players and its consorts seem unlikely to stand the acid test of fairness.

A concession now will avert a small revolution later on.

Little sparks like the Koney deal fan the players' feelings to bitterness. It is inevitable but that some fighter who has saved a little money will have a tilt at the absoluteness of organized baseball.

Sox Appear Weak. WHAT Conisher sees in the way of pennant material in his club must be confined in great part to his new men. He doesn't appear to have any great shakes of an outfield; he has no first baseman at all, that seems to shape up to major league caliber. The best part of his club consists of Harry Lord and Ed Walsh.

The Old Roman has been strong in his assertion that he will be in the front, this season. And he generally manages to come close to his predictions. But he presumes he seems to be overplaying his hand. In that other "national game," poker, he would be "called" in a hurry.

Al De Oro will probably be the stepping stone on which Pierre Maupome, the Mexican cue wizard, who has been making history for the St. Louis team in the inter-city league race, will rise to the top. De Oro is now devoting all his time to three cushions, and expects to win back the title from John Daly of New York. Maupome will have a challenge in the moment the match is concluded. The match may not take place for several months; but it is certain that if the Mexican progresses at the same rate he has since his arrival here, he will be able to beat the Cuban wizard.

William Maupome. It is possible that if the Cincinnati club is going to lean heavily on infielder Dave Altizer, it may find a bent road supporting it. Altizer played the greatest game of his career, according to Association writers. But J. H. Ritchie, in the Minneapolis Journal, drops a hint that Altizer's good showing may have been due to his nearness to Jimmy Williams. Mr. Ritchie credits Williams with teaching Altizer more than the latter player ever knew before.

To this may be added the moral effect of being supported by so intelligent a thinker as James.

However, in form, Altizer appears very much "the goods" and all his friends seem to think that what he learned from Williams will stick when he plays with the Reds.

Earmarks of an Octopus. BASEBALL is a combination in restraint of the free exercise to a player of an inherent right to dispose of his own ability in his best advantage. This condition of affairs cannot in the nature of things be avoided, for it is by this method alone that clubs can be built up to any sort of stability or efficiency. But if the owners and solons of the game really want to hunt a solution to the proposition, it can be found in the expansion of the National Commission into a body of five men, two of whom will be representatives of the players, one from each league.

This will at least give the men who make the game possible a voice in matters wherein they are so vitally interested.

Player Just a Chattel. BASEBALL exacts much of its chattels. Once a salary is accepted by a player he becomes the property of the club almost in fee simple, so absolute is the domination over him possessed by the holder of his signature. He may not do business with any other team; he cannot take part in any athletic exercise during the winter which might jeopardize his limbs or health; he cannot go to law to get justice done but must go before the National Commission, a tribunal of owners on which he is denied representation.

If he carries his objections to the salary offered him so far as to fall to report before May 1, he goes on the blacklist for two years. If he cannot come to any sort of terms with the club he must abandon baseball or play with some petty independent league.

ROBINSON MEETS CARL FORLINE IN M. A. C. FEATURE

Crack Sprinters Entered in Dash Even at Indoor Athletic Meet Tonight.

If that Missouri Athletic Club track were less of a miniature affair, the indoor athletic meeting to be held at the club's gymnasium Saturday night would promise excellent sport. Entries for the various contests have attracted athletes from St. Louis University, Christian Brothers College, Central Y. C. A., the Missouri Athletic Club and other organizations.

Coach Bender's St. L. U. stars will all compete for the purpose of getting a good workout in advance of their dual athletic meet at the Army with the First Regiment team, Feb. 22. Eddie Tobin, Carl Forline, Harry Kiener, Ray, Newnam, Raymond Dockery, Garasche and other well-known local stars are among the many capable athletes entered.

The distance affairs, however, which are handicaps, will be extremely hard on the scratch men, owing to the narrowness of the track and the many laps required to make a mile. Tobin of St. Louis U., is on scratch in the half, while Irvin Blei, the clever M. A. C. distance runner, will go from the mark in the mile run.

Several athletes have entered from the scholastic institutions and "unattached," as well as from the clubs and colleges. The 35-yard dash will furnish a whirl of entertainment. A big field has entered for this event with Jesse Robinson and Carl Forline as the principal rivals.

Fighter Named to Run Game Between Scholastic Fives

The interscholastic basketball supremacy will be decided Saturday afternoon, when the teams representing the Yeatman High School and Western Military Academy of Alton, Ill., will meet at the Louisiana Hall at 8 p. m.

Both teams have gone through their schedules without losing a game, all of the local high school teams falling victims to their fast playing.

Boxing Instructor Eddie Randall of the Missouri Athletic Club has been appointed to act as referee, and it is needless to say that the M. A. C. man will hold the game down to a strict A. A. U. contest, the rules under which the I. L. teams play. Basket ball locally has dwindled down to a regular football game indoors, but neither of the teams will get by with that sort of play this afternoon.

Followers of both schools are very confident, but the wisecracks who are speculating to some extent pick Western as the choice.

TESTIMONIAL WILL BE TENDERED MAUPOME

Beginning Monday night six more games will be played by the St. Louis team in the intercity three cushion billiard league. The teams to be played are Pittsburg and Brooklyn.

Pierre Maupome will be used in all the games, if necessary. If the other members of the team, Calmer and Carter, show evidences of not being in stroke, Maupome will be substituted at once.

St. Louis has a good lead and Peterson is eager to test the national championship. A reputation was accorded Maupome when he stepped into Peterson's hall at noon, Friday, the crowd applauding for five minutes. The Mexican was unable to respond, as he has not mastered English sufficiently, and he was so embarrassed he could scarcely make a simple carom when called upon to give a little exhibition.

A testimonial will be presented to Maupome next Monday evening, after his intercity game. About $100 has already been raised for this purpose. A suitable gift will be purchased with the amount contributed.

Cubs Could Use Downey. One of the many trades now being attempted is that of Downey, the Cincinnati infielder, for one of the Cubs' pitchers. Chance wants to give Griffling a left-hander. Pleister, Foxen, but the Red leader wants to land Buck Weaver, the right-handed "phenom." The deal is still pending.

Frankie R. Truesdale Here. Bronzed and hardy, Frankie Truesdale, the last second baseman of the Browns, returned to St. Louis from a hunting trip Friday. Truesdale had a long talk with Manager Wallace of the Browns. It is thought Truesdale will be the regular at second sack this year.

That's the way they used to treat the youngsters in those days. I started on the bench that time for 11 days before I got a chance to play at all.

Today the older men take the youngsters under their arms, so to speak, and do everything they can to help him out. They show a man his weak points, and if he has a strong one they show him how to use them to best advantage. Today they say: "Well, that youngster has the goods and I'll bet he'll make good," instead of "Drop that!"

That may seem just a little thing, but it simply goes to show how the men have changed, even in the length of time I have been connected with the game. Today it's a game of "boast" instead of "knock."

STOCK PRICES ADVANCE THE LATE TRADING. THE POST-DISPATCH'S COMPLETE DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE. STOCK PRICES ADVANCE THE LATE TRADING.

German Bank Rate Is Reduced; Southern Railway Pays Dividend. BANK RETURN IS GOOD. Surplus Reserves Reach the Highest Total Since Year 1897.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The New York Evening Post in its copyrighted daily financial review, says: Whether today's continued advance in prices was merely reaction from the collapse of Thursday, after the gratifying reports regarding the health of various rich men, or whether it represents a new initiative, gains of a point or thereabouts in the active shares were numerous.

Wall street itself was inclined to ascribe the upward movement wholly to the buying back of stock by professional operators for the decline, who had been selling earlier in the week position as the week draws to an end. There was no news of any particular significance to the market. One of the day was the report of the 1910. One looks at these reports for social and economic results of the year 1910 are interesting. Results for 1910 are interesting. Results for 1910 are interesting.

The week's bank figures showed a $3,800,000 increase in the surplus. This was partly obtained by addition of $5,000,000 to actual cash holdings, about what had been estimated. It was also, it would seem, by the playing of the week's new loans with the trust companies. Loans decreased $4,700,000 on the week and $10,000,000 on the month. The surplus reserve is now the largest for this time of the year since 1897.

COTTON MARKET IRREGULAR AFTER EARLY ADVANCE. NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The cotton market opened steady, with a slight advance on crop month, but soon turned to a new crop, in response to higher prices on the expected. A bullish interpretation of the week-end and future market conditions would take up cotton on March 1st in Texas, according to reports from the market. The market was steady, with a slight advance on crop month, but soon turned to a new crop, in response to higher prices on the expected.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 18.—Cotton: Spot in fair demand; prices 10 points higher. Futures: March, 14.10; April, 14.15; May, 14.20; June, 14.25; July, 14.30; August, 14.35; September, 14.40; October, 14.45; November, 14.50; December, 14.55. The market was steady, with a slight advance on crop month, but soon turned to a new crop, in response to higher prices on the expected.

METHODIST BIBLE CLASSES PLANNING AN ORGANIZATION

Final Session of First Annual Conference Will Be Held Sunday.

OTHER RELIGIOUS NOTES

First Christian Church to Remain in Downtown District After Repairs Are Made.

The final session of the first annual conference of the adult department of all the Southern Methodist churches of the St. Louis district will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Scruggs Memorial Church, Cook and Spring avenues. It is planned to perfect a permanent organization of the adult Bible classes of the various Methodist churches in St. Louis and its suburbs.

The principal speaker at the meeting will be the Rev. Charles D. Bull, superintendent of the Wesley Bible Class department, and E. E. French of Nashville, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Tennessee State Sunday School Association.

The Wesley Adult Bible Class Department was created at the last general conference of the church. The enrolling of members of the various adult Bible classes into the Wesley department has been going on several weeks. It is planned to form a closer union of this branch with the church at the annual session.

The First Christian Church, 3126 Locust street, referred to as the "grandmother" of all churches of that denomination in St. Louis, is preparing to remain as a place of worship in the downtown district. It will be remodeled and repaired. The church is known throughout the State and Mississippi Valley, and is a historic structure.

The devotion of the Forty Hours' Adoration will be observed next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Loreto Academy.

The Rev. Father P. P. Crane of St. Lawrence O'Toole's Parish is much improved in health as a result of his stay in Los Angeles, Cal., according to a letter to friends in St. Louis. He expects to return to his duties in the parish before March 1.

The Rev. Father J. A. Schult, formerly of St. Leo's Church, has been appointed to the pastorate of St. Francis Xavier's Parish at St. Louis, Mo., made vacant by the removal of the Rev. Father Conrad Brockmeyer to Nefers. Mo. The Rev. Father L. C. Brockmeyer has been transferred from Clayville, Mo., to a parish at River aux Yvres, Mo., where he will succeed the Rev. Father A. H. Schaefer, who died a few weeks ago.

A successful mission in St. Columbian's Parish was concluded Friday night by the Rev. Fathers M. J. Hanley and Anthony Malloy.

James Hoffman Batten will deliver a lecture to men at the Central Y. M. C. A., Grand and Franklin avenues, Sunday at 4 p. m. His subject will be "Faith-Power in World Life." Mr. Batten has frequently been referred to as the "Little Giant of the Lyceum Platform."

The annual fellowship mass meeting of the Young People's Societies of the various churches was held Friday night at the Second Presbyterian Church, Westminster place and Taylor avenue. C. C. Hult, president of the Baptist Young People's Union, presided.

Mrs. Anna P. Mamroy of Palestine will talk on "Orientations of Bible Records" at the North Side Y. M. C. A., 1900 St. Louis avenue, Sunday, at 4 p. m. A program of special music has been arranged by Christ Stocke.

A series of revival meetings at Tower Grove Baptist Church, 4318 Norfolk avenue, will be inaugurated Sunday by the Rev. J. H. Deane, pastor and superintendent of the Lighthouse Mission. The Rev. Mr. Deane has returned from Howard, Kan., where he was engaged in evangelistic work two weeks.

The Rev. Charles L. Kloss of Webster Groves will address the Congregational Ministers' meeting Monday morning. He will tell of his conclusions based on his recent visits to the leading congregational churches of the country. His subject will be "The Church Facing a Crisis."

A holiness rally service will be conducted Sunday at 3 p. m. at the Light-house Chapel, 1117 Kentucky avenue, by the Rev. J. H. Deane, pastor and superintendent of the Lighthouse Mission. The Rev. Mr. Deane has returned from Howard, Kan., where he was engaged in evangelistic work two weeks.

The Rev. Charles R. Nisbett of Nashville, Tenn., has accepted the call to the pastorate of Trinity Presbyterian Church, Vernon and Academy avenues. He will take charge of his new duties as soon as he can complete arrangements in his charge at Nashville. The Trinity congregation was formed by the merging of the Bank Memorial and the Cook Avenue Presbyterian churches. Dr. Nisbett is chairman of the Evangelists Committee of the General Assembly and is a member of the Foreign Mission Board.

REVIEWS OF NEW BOOKS

"THE TRAIL OF NINETY-EIGHT."

LONG the trail of Ninety-eight. We go with Robert Service, And ours is quite a lively gait. If you will but observe us— Through chapters one, two, three and four, And country wild and woolly, We rush along like Theodore, And like him, crying "Bully!"

Full many times have we traversed This old familiar highway, And heard its tragedy rehearsed In every little by-way— But North is North, and what with men Of red, red blood and gory, We glory go that way again With this engaging story.

You cannot tell, you know, It may Develop that Jack London, Who oftentimes has led the way, Is ultimately undone By this young Cannuck who essays To poach on his dominion, And after such a lapse of days Would venture our opinion.

Which brings us on to chapter ten, And still the going Continues good, still, now and then, You may observe us blowing. We take the slopes with heavy breath Once lighter than a feather, And no doubt some go down to death And give up altogether.

However, let us still push on, Recalling Joaquin Miller, And what Columbus said at dawn To him who held the tiller. It may be that we shall regain The headway here retarded, And perseverance in the main Will not go unrewarded.

So much to chapter twenty-three— The trail is scarce detected, And the narrative is certainly Not what we had expected. The want of romance in the skies Suffices to unnerve us, And interest lays down and dies— Good night to Mr. Service.

("The Trail of Ninety-Eight," by Robert W. Service. Dodd-Mead & Co.)

"ANGELA'S QUEST."
HAD Lillian Bell written "Angela's Quest" in the good old days of the New York Ledger, the entire thing would have been made a keg of money out of its publication. It is the melodramatic movement of a corkscrew detective story. Angela is a treasured pupil in a convent school when the story opens. She does not know her parents or history, but is rebellious because of the dense veil of secrecy about her. She snoops and learns that she was stolen, escapes from school and finds her mother who is a speechless paralytic. She also finds her uncle, the cruel villain of the family, and her father, who is another villain. There is a sub villain and two heroes—perhaps there are three. They have an awfully jolly time, don't you know, with plot and counterplot. The mystery lightens only to deepen again. One hero discovers that Angela's father is a prisoner on an island somewhere and two rival yachts start for him, one bearing the chief hero and the other the chief villain. They shoot it up in the Caribbean and rescue father providentially, as he is about to give up after fighting for weeks the Atlantic in a row boat, and live happily ever after. You wouldn't have thought it of Lillian Bell, but she does it. (Duffield.)

"THE GATES OF TWILIGHT."
W. H. H. knows and loves the South. He will find deep enjoyment in the poem which Henry E. Harman has included in his new volume. He will also be proud that a Southern publisher has produced so beautiful a book.

Mr. Harman is at his best when he writes of the South. Its natural charms and its wealth of historic tradition. Songs of the South form a goodly part of the 69 poems. Here are extracts from two:

THE LAND OF MEMORIES.
There lies the South of soul-kept memories, Above whose plains bend old and valiant skies. Along whose coasts the craft of Romance sails, Where every breeze that sweeps each sunny plain Brings dreams of youth again.

Who once slept beneath this senuous sky, Who once has dreamed where dark magic grows, Feeding the spell, will never question why The South thus lulls and charms the stranger so. Here every night that folds him in its arms Weaves 'round his soul new charms.

SPRING ALONG THE FAIR SAVANNAH.
Spring along the fair Savannah, when the robins haunt his red, When the jameine hangs its yellow on the willows overhead, Every wind that wakes your dreaming Whispers something love has said. Who has heard the South a-calling once will hear it call again. Who has seen the poppies blushing to an Oriental stain And is seduced from his glory, feels an elf's keenest pain.

The book is bound in the daintiest blue, and the photographs of Southern woodland scenery are both attractive and appropriate to the text. There are also several posed photographs, some of which fall short of the artistic effect intended. Some of the poems, on sentimental subjects, are hardly up to the standard of the more spontaneous nature verses. A fault several times repeated is the use of the word "cry," which is not an acceptable poetic synonym for "weep." Mr. Harman has published three previous volumes of poems (Stone & Barringer Co., Charlotte, N. C.).

"JUST FOLKS."

A COLLECTION of stories woven into one with a "love interest" for a faint background describes technically the latest volume from the pen of Clara E. Laughlin. The stories are about "folks" living in the crowded district of Chicago. Hull House receives incidental mention. The characters are for the most part described in love and sympathy. The central figure is that of a courageous little probation officer and her lover, a newspaper man. The lovers have no troubles of their own. Life is too serious for such trifles as far as they are concerned.

In spite of the sympathy of the author for those about whom she writes, there is a certain superficiality which mars the otherwise fine work. Here and there the author has a glimpse of a cause rather than effects. But this is not the general rule in the book. She knows the Irish people well and describes them with that inner sympathy that one has for one's own, a sympathy that always comes from understanding. In the case of the Jewish characters in the book there is a laudable attempt at understanding. The author clearly tries to be just and fair. There is none of the conventional "Hebrew" in her book. But she does not fully understand the Jew. She sympathizes, that is all. Nor does the author grasp the significance of the strike which is part of her work. She has put into the book the conventional "strike leader," who is either nonexistent today or if existent is an exception. Union men will have reason to regard the author as prejudiced against their organizations and their efforts.

Hardly any other weak spots can be pointed out against the book. All in all it is worth reading and will be found both elevating and entertaining. After closing the book the reader will feel with Liza Allen, one of the characters, that "Folks ain't no problem if you really know 'em. They're just folks." But he will realize, if he is thoughtful, that just because folks are simply folks the social and economic problems which and others suffer on account of want must be solved so that "just folks" may have a fair chance to develop the very best that is in them.

"Just Folks" will be found as fascinating a story about the various races and nationalities living together in the crowded districts of our large cities as has come from any pen in recent years. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

"ASHTON-KIRK, INVESTIGATOR."
HA, would you like to know who telephoned Ashton-Kirk at dawn to say: "Murder has been done?" Who put out the light, after midnight, in the room across the way? Why all the portraits of Gen. Wayne were destroyed? What meaning Ashton-Kirk found in a particle of cardboard—key-stone shaped—and punched from a railroad ticket, found on the murdered man's desk? Who bought the bronze layonet and used it? How Ashton-Kirk read the strange message contained in a candle-end, some tallow droppings and a few burnt matches? Would you like to know what troubled Miss Edith Vale and Allan Morris? Would you like to compare the work of Ashton-Kirk with that of Sherlock Holmes? Would you like to thread a mystery with him? "Ashton-Kirk, Investigator," is a detective story by John E. McIntyre, in which these questions arise. It's a pretty good one. Illustrations are by Ralph L. Boyer. (The Penn Publishing Co.)

ARTISTS' CONCERT:

"ROMANCE OF A MONK."

NOVEL containing much of human interest is "The Romance of a Monk," by Alice King. The story deals with the Catholic confessional in a rather broad and worldly way, in which passion overcomes religious zeal, and the monk's cloak and sandals give place to wedding garb—a romance of the confessional. The book has many gripping, intense situations, but the author fails to hold attention and interest between exciting climaxes. It is not an entirely original theme, but the end is worked out in a somewhat different way—with the conclusion that "God makes man—man makes monks"—and this monk of the romance one of man's poorest works. NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Beware of the Ally!

"The great body of people will hear gladly," says the Los Angeles Express. And the "great body of people" says the Church World must reckon with "The Calling of Dan Matthews," and two continents will continue to ring with discussion over this "skillfully mapped battle-field of human souls" just so long as preachers like the Rev. Dr. Frederick Hartzel (see "That Printer of Uddell's") continue to "kick against the pricks." Every attempt to answer "The Calling of Dan Matthews" has proven a miserable failure. There is no answer.

"The Calling of Dan Matthews" is sold everywhere. Ask your bookseller. Over One Million Copies of Harold Bell Wright's novels have been sold in the United States alone. Mr. Wright's story of the Great Colorado Desert, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," will be published in August. First edition, 175,000 copies.

"ADVENTURES IN FRIENDSHIP."

THE universal brotherhood of man is the keynote of David Grayson's charming book, "Adventures in Friendship." To all who come down his open road he reaches out his hand with the "grip of fellowship," and through that greatest of all fraternities he finds friends everywhere.

With the joy of living in his heart he gladly introduces us to his beloved Scotch preacher, the Starkweather, to the shy Beaman, the Old Maid, the girl Anna, the Celebrity, and the Gunmaker, all different from you and me, but each so full of human nature, kindness and childlike simplicity that immediately you are filled with a pleasant friendly feeling of companionship.

He shows the folly of going to Switzerland for peaks and passes and to England for cathedrals, when by merely going out on our own open road and using a fresh mind and fresh eyes we can find a new heaven and a new earth.

There is no plot to the book, each incident is an adventure, but when you have read the last page you lay it down in a place where you can reach out your hand and pick it up again in your first leisure moment. (Doubleday, Page.)

"He reproached me for not giving him Sanatogen sooner."

An incident that occurred in a doctor's office the other day. This man, so his doctor writes us, came to seek relief from nervous prostration—the usual story: nerves on the brink of starvation through overwork and business worry, poor appetite, bad digestion and consequent mental depression. The doctor gave him some common-sense advice and ordered the use of Sanatogen.

Like thousands of other doctors, he knew that for a starved, debilitated, nervous system nothing could be more beneficial, for Sanatogen embodies the very essence of nerve substance, which the hungry cells absorb as eagerly as the parched earth absorbs water. And the patient, rejuvenated by its life-giving effects, fortified by its reconstructive action, has but one regret: that of not having used it before. Could a more eloquent tribute be paid to the value of Sanatogen?

Does this episode convey any message to you? Are you in need of something to help your starved nerves—to give you fresh vigor, strength and health? If so, write at once for "Our Nerves of To-morrow," a valuable and readable essay by a physician who convincingly sets forth the needs of the nervous system during times of stress. Ask your doctor about Sanatogen—ask your druggist—ask something toward obtaining the benefits of Sanatogen without further delay.
